

The News ©
April 26th, 8am
by Nia Cason

The last Council of Ministers, which was to take place tomorrow, has finally been postponed. This will be the last meeting of the executive on Thursday before the appointment of a new government. Following the re-election of Emmanuel Macron, Jean Castex has already announced that he will resign in the next few days. His successor should be presented at the beginning of next week. During his campaign, Emmanuel Macron announced that the head of his next government would be responsible for ecological planning.

The head of Russian diplomacy warned of the "real" risk of World War III yesterday. Sergei Lavrov says he is ready to continue negotiations with Ukraine, but accuses Kyiv of showing ill will. He also renewed the Kremlin's warning about the danger of nuclear war.

For its part, London is abolishing customs duties on Ukrainian products, which responds to a direct request from Volodymyr Zelensky. The Secretary for International Trade declared in a press release that the British government wishes to do everything in its power to support Ukraine's fight against Putin's "brutal and unprovoked invasion".

Elon Musk is the new boss of Twitter. The social network confirmed its takeover last night by the richest man in the world for 44 billion dollars. The American billionaire, already owner of Tesla and Space X, wishes make Twitter a place of absolute freedom of expression.

The family of a girl infected with E. coli bacteria received a voucher for 20 euros after eating a Buitoni pizza. The 7-year-old girl had been hospitalized. This gesture has been deemed "indecent" by the family's lawyer, who spoke yesterday in the columns of Le Parisien. The brand has apologized. We remind you that two children died following contamination with bacteria linked to the consumption of Buitoni pizza.