

The News ©
April 28th, 9am
by Nia Cason

Will there be a France Insoumise-Socialist Party agreement for the legislative elections? The discussions started yesterday between the two movements, and will continue today. On the other hand, the negotiations are at a standstill between the party of Jean-Luc Mélenchon and the ecologists.

On the government side, the council of ministers will have a kind of leaving gathering this morning from 10 am. This is most likely the last meeting of the government of Jean Castex. Emmanuel Macron is currently working on the name of the Prime Minister's successor.

Also in the news, as a first since the beginning of the war, the Secretary General of the United Nations is visiting Ukraine. After Kyiv yesterday, Antonio Guterres goes today to Irpin and Boutcha, two towns on the outskirts of the capital where the Russian army is accused of atrocities against dozens of civilians.

A conflict that has consequences on the edible oil market. With the shortage of Ukrainian sunflower oil, prices are increasing. And it's set to get worse: the world's largest palm oil exporter, Indonesia, announced last night it was suspending all exports.

A cigarette and the leak of the co-pilot's oxygen mask caused the fire on the Paris-Cairo flight of May 16th, 2016. This is the conclusion of several French experts. One of the pilots smoked in the cockpit of this Egyptair plane according to this document sent to French justice. In total, 66 people died in this crash, including 15 French people.