Citizens in France are being asked to make an effort this winter to save energy. Emmanuel Macron has called on the French public to achieve at least 10% energy savings. One key way to do this is by limiting heating. The current energy crisis is directly linked to the war in Ukraine and the Russians cutting off supplies.

Staying with Ukraine, the long-awaited report on the situation of the Ukrainian nuclear power plant in Zaporizhia will be unveiled today by the International Atomic Energy Agency. A team of the IAEA had gone there last week to take stock of the site which has been occupied by Russian forces and has been repeatedly hit by bombardments.

Liz Truss is the new Prime Minister of the United Kingdom succeeding Boris Johnson. She was elected by the British Conservative Party and will officially take office today after her audience with Queen Elizabeth II.

On the 2nd day of the Paris hearing in the trial of the Nice attack in 2016, the defendants will speak today. They are suspected of being closely involved in the truck attack on July the 14th on the Promenade des Anglais which left 86 dead and more than 400 injured.

And finally, PSG has made the headlines over comments made by their coach. The club had been pulled up by the SNCF to promote travel by train rather than by plane. Christophe Galtier joked yesterday at a press conference that he "was trying to see if the players could move around in a sand yacht". His comments did not go down well with the Minister of Sports, Amélie Oudéa-Castéra, and led to her strongly criticizing him on social networks.

PSG start their European campaign this evening as they welcome Juventus Turin for the 1st day of the Champions League. Kick-off is at 9 p.m.
