

The News

March 31st, 8am ©

by Nia Cason

Donald Trump has denounced political persecution and a witch hunt as he faces justice in the Stormy Daniels case. The former American president has just been charged for having bought the silence of this porn actress in 2016 in the midst of an election campaign. This payment may have violated campaign finance laws. The billionaire who dreams of winning back the White House in 2024, could appear next Tuesday according to his lawyer. A first for a former President of the United States.

In France, who will succeed Philippe Martinez as the head of the CGT? The name of the new union leader will be known in the next few hours. Three names are expected, namely Marie Buisson, Céline Verzeletti and Olivier Mateu. Three names that will either way see the continuation of the union front against the pension reform.

Meanwhile France Insoumise and the Communists are boycotting Matignon. The Prime Minister wanted to invite them to discuss to "appease the country". The deputies of the National Rally will be received by Élisabeth Borne on Tuesday April 11. The socialists are waiting for their side to receive the invitation to decide while the ecologists have not yet responded.

Also in the news, there were rallies in front of the country's prefectures last night to denounce police violence. Demonstrations have been in support of the two activists who were seriously injured last weekend during the demonstration in Sainte-Soline. We learned in the evening that one of them has come out of a coma, the other is still between life and death.

Caregivers not vaccinated against covid could soon to return to the hospital. The government will follow the opinion of the High Authority of Health, which recommends the end of the vaccination obligation for health professionals. 4,000 caregivers were suspended last November according to the French Hospital Federation.

And finally, storm Mathis shakes the north of France. Gusts of up to 110 km are expected on the coasts of the Channel, the Channel is also on orange alert as is the Pas de Calais.