

The News

April 4th 1pm©

by Noele Bouazouni-Prier

This is a historic moment in the United States: Former American President Donald Trump will appear this evening in a New York court. The billionaire is accused of having paid in 2016 130,000 dollars to a porn actress to buy her silence. Donald Trump could be judged only within a year, just before the next American election in which the Republican is a candidate. A case, which could still allow him to score some points with his voters according to some specialists.

In the Manhattan court, Donald Trump is expected to plead not guilty. At the end of his court appearance, he will speak from his residence in Florida.

In France, Elisabeth Borne continues her consultations. After the representatives of the center yesterday, the Prime Minister receives today two forces from the left in Matignon: Marine Tondelier, national secretary of Europe écologie les verts and Olivier Faure, first secretary of the Socialist Party. The objective is to try to ease tensions around the pension reform.

The former president of the Angers soccer club is in police custody. Saïd Chabane is again in the sights of justice, this time for suspicion of money laundering. He is already prosecuted in a case of sexual assault.

And finally only a few hours left to win the jackpot. La Française des Jeux is still looking for a player from the north of France who has not yet recovered his or her one million euro prize won on February 3. The winner has until midnight tonight to show up.