The Minister of Labor Olivier Dussopt will be tried for favoritism at the end of November. This information was communicated by BFM TV. He is suspected of having favored a company within the framework of the debates on the attribution of the water market in the town of Annonay when he was the mayor. The investigations notably revealed meetings between Olivier Dussopt and the managers of the company in question when the market had not yet been awarded.

Still in the judicial chapter: A man is tried today for having harassed the singer Hoshi on social networks. The young woman has been the victim of thousands of hate messages and death threats for three years after her passage on stage at the Victoires de la Musique. At the end of her performance, she had kissed one of her female dancers on the mouth to denounce homophobia.

2 men are indicted and placed in pre-trial detention in Toulouse. They are suspected of being involved in the murder of a 25-year-old young man on Monday evening in the district of Empalot against a backdrop of drug trafficking.

There are only a few hours left to find an agreement. These are the last day for negotiations concerning plastic pollution. Delegations from 175 states have been meeting since Monday at the UNESCO headquarters in Paris. Their objective is to agree on a treaty that limits the production and use of plastic worldwide.

And then soccer tonight with the epilogue for the second league 2. There is still uncertainty at the top of the ranking on who will go up to Premier league. The leader, Le Havre, only needs a tie against Dijon. Behind, Metz receives Bastia and is best placed ahead of Bordeaux which hosts Rodez. The 10 matches begin at 8:45 p.m.
