It was a long-awaited decision: Glyphosate will be reauthorized for 10 years within the European Union.

The 27 member states have not managed to find an agreement today on whether or not to extend this very controversial herbicide. Obviously, this decision is a disappointment for many.

As a reminder, this herbicide is considered carcinogenic by the World Health Organization.

In Gaza, the Israeli army continues today its targeted military operation against Hamas in the Al Chifa hospital. Israel accuses the Palestinian Islamist movement of using the establishment as a military base. A raid is currently being carried out by the Hebrew State despite the presence of hundreds of patients and thousands of civilians.

This is a figure which unfortunately continues to increase: 244,000 people were victims of domestic violence last year according to the Ministry of the Interior, which is 15% more in one year. Almost 9 out of 10 victims are women and only a quarter of them file a complaint.

And after Ciaran and Domingos, it is Frédéric who is reaching our coasts today. It will first hit the Brittany-Grand Est axis before hitting the South-East. Gusts between 100 and 130 km/h are expected.

And then tennis and the rest of the Turin Masters. In the green group, Novak Djokovic faces Hubert Hurkacz this afternoon and this evening Jannik Sinneure will face Holger Rune.
