

The News

November 29th 6pm©

by Noele Bouazouni-Prier

It's a relief for Éric Dupond-Moretti. The Minister of Justice was acquitted this afternoon by the Court. The Minister of Justice was tried for illegal conflict of interest. The prosecution had requested a fairly severe sentence, but in the end, Eric Dupont Moretti was found innocent. After his acquittal, Eric Dupont Moretti who did not speak at the end of his trial, is expected to remain in the government.

In the rest of the news: A final farewell to Gérard Collomb. The funeral of the former Minister of the Interior took place today at the Saint-Jean Cathedral in his hometown, Lyon, where he was mayor for almost 20 years. Present at the ceremony, Emmanuel Macron paid tribute to the memory of a true statesman, who was also one of his first supporters in politics.

Good news if you are planning to take the train for Christmas: There will be no strike at the SNCF. Sud Rail has lifted its call for mobilization, due to a lack of agreement with the other unions of the railway company who were opposed to this end-of-year social movement.

And then it's always an event as Christmas approaches. The traditional lighting of the tree at the Rockefeller Center in New York will take place this evening. The Norwegian tree will be equipped with more than 50,000 multicolored LED lights and, at the top, a star covered with 3 million crystals. Its lights will illuminate the Big Apple until January 13.