

The News

March 5th 1pm

by Noele Bouazouni-Prier

Encourage the vocations of local elected officials. This is the objective of this bill examined from today in the Senate. It aims to create a status for mayors and MPs, as resignations are increasing. According to Eric Krezel, mayor of Céfon and vice-president of the Association of Rural Mayors of France, these roles are becoming increasingly difficult to take on.

The Association of Rural Mayors of France also calls for the inclusion of these provisions in the labor code, to facilitate the exercise of a profession in parallel with the function of elected official.

The construction site of line C of the Toulouse metro has stopped, the day after a bridge under construction partially collapsed yesterday in Labège, killing a worker and seriously injuring 2 others. According to the public prosecutor's office, the accident seems to be due to the breakage of a cylinder.

The debate on the aid provided to Ukraine will take place on March 12 in the National Assembly. MPs will speak on this bilateral agreement concluded last month between Emmanuel Macron and Volodymyr Zelensky, which provides for Paris to provide 3 billion euros worth of aid in additional military aid to Kyiv.

In the United States, today is Super Tuesday - A flagship day of the American primaries, where voters in 15 states are called to vote at the same time. Unsurprisingly, President Joe Biden is the favorite to represent the Democratic Party, just like Donald Trump on the Republican side.