

The News

March 5th 6pm

by Noele Bouazouni-Prier

Last Wednesday, a teacher at the Maurice Ravel high school in the 20th arrondissement of Paris asked a student to remove her headscarf before going to class. Just afterward, the teacher received numerous death threats on social networks. Nicole Belloubet went there this morning. The Minister of Education denounces "unacceptable" threats and promises that the government remains very attentive to what is happening on the online.

Scenes of chaos this morning at the Gustave Eiffel high school in Cachan in Val-de-Marne. Hundreds of students demonstrated to denounce their working conditions in this establishment deemed unsanitary. The demonstration then degenerated. Clashes broke out with the police and a 17-year-old boy was arrested.

Gérard Depardieu is targeted by a 3rd investigation. This time it is a decorator who accuses the actor of having sexually assaulted her. The acts were supposedly committed during the filming of the film "Les Volets verts" by Jean Becker in 2021.

And today is Super Tuesday in the United States, 8 months before the presidential election. Millions of voters from 15 states are voting for the candidate who will represent their party. Unsurprisingly, President Joe Biden is favorite for the Democrats and Donald Trump is predicted winner for the Republican side.